Snap-on Driver Will Power Captures Third IRL Win of Season

Penske Teammates Briscoe Third, Castroneves Fourth in Texas

KENOSHA, Wis. – June 13, 2011 – Snap-on sponsored driver Will Power captured his third win of the season with a victory in the second race of the IRL Twin 275s held June 11 at Texas Motor Speedway in Ft. Worth. With the win, Power picked up 25 points and now holds a 21-point advantage in the season point standings.

“What a great win for Will,” said Rick Secor, director of marketing communications for Snap-on Tools. “We also want to congratulate him on his first ever IRL oval win. Will has won three of the seven IRL races so far and has put himself in a great position for the season championship. We hope he continues his success this week when he races at Snap-on’s ‘home’ track in Milwaukee.”

Power started from the third position in the second race after finishing third in the first 275 of the night. His Penske Racing teammates, Ryan Briscoe (third) and Helio Castroneves (fourth), also finished in the top five in race two. The Penske IRL drivers will race next at the Milwaukee Mile on June 19 in the IRL 225.

The Penske Racing team almost matched the IRL win with a NASCAR Sprint Cup victory as Snap-on sponsored Kurt Busch finished second at the Pocono 500 on June 12. The Penske Sprint Cup and Nationwide teams will race this weekend at Michigan International Speedway.

The Snap-on Funny Car will return to action after a week off when Cruz Pedregon races June 17-19 at the NHRA Thunder Valley Nationals in Bristol, Tenn. Pedregon, who is fourth in the NHRA Funny Car point standings, is looking for his first win of the year after finishing second at Englishtown last time out.
