Will Power Takes Win at Sonoma for Snap-on Sponsored Penske Racing

KENOSHA, Wis. – August 27, 2013 – Will Power, part of Snap-on sponsored Penske Racing, had his first victory of the IndyCar season this weekend in Sonoma. The win came on the heels of a penalty to Scott Dixon, who was in the lead before a pit row accident injured three members of Power's pit crew.

"We know Will was really in tune with his team Sunday, helping him stay up front throughout the race," says Yvette Morrison, vice president of marketing, Snap-on Tools. "We're glad his pit crew checked out okay at the track after the incident."

Power reflected on the event saying, "The rule is pretty clear – you can't make contact with anything or anyone in someone else's pit box. Safety is the most important thing, and I'm just glad my guys are alright – that looked pretty bad when I finally saw the replay." And, of the race he says, "It's been a long wait to get back to Victory Circle, but I'm happy it came here in Sonoma. I like this place."

Power started the race from third and took the top position on lap 70 holding on to the lead through the next 16 laps for the win. He is now ranked eighth overall in the IndyCar standings.
