Make a Big Impact with Snap-on's New Micro Cordless Impact Wrench

KENOSHA, Wis. – March 1, 2011 – It might have the word micro in its name, but the new Snap-on 1/4-inch Square Drive Micro Cordless Impact Wrench (CT525) is a big tool for getting jobs done fast and keeping you working longer with less down time. The CT525 is powerful yet comfortable and can handle most jobs, big or small.

“The new CT525 has an integrated soft pistol grip handle for positive tool control and the 55-minute battery charge time will let you work for longer periods of time,” said Rodger Isetts, product manager for Snap-on. “This tool is great for restricted access areas, for under the dash work and installation and removal of automotive interior components. Because of its multiple applications, it is a great addition to your tool box.”

The Snap-on 1/4-inch Square Drive Micro Cordless Impact Wrench (CT525) features an over-sized forward/reverse cushion toggle-style trigger, allowing you to quickly toggle from forward to reverse with one hand operation and less finger stress and strain. The glass-filled nylon housing is durable with high impact strength for longer tool life. The maximum torque for the CT525 is 50 ft lbs. The CT525 can be used for a variety of repairs, including:

- Fender bolts
- Valve cover bolts
- 12mm oil and transmission pan bolts
- Under dash fasteners
- Installing door lock assemblies
- Small engine repair
- 12mm fasteners and smaller
- Splash shield removal and installation
- Water pump pulley bolts
- Fan shroud bolts
- Interior seat removal and installation

The Snap-on CT525 includes a 7.2 volt cordless screwdriver (CT525DB), two battery packs (CTB5172), battery charger (CTC572) and soft-sided case (CTSC1), and can be used for a broad range of engine applications, such as Ford 4.6 liter, Briggs & Stratton, Tecumseh and motorcycle engine applications.

Customers can find out more about the Snap-on 1/4-inch Square Drive Micro Cordless Impact Wrench (CT525) by contacting their participating Snap-on franchisee or representative, visiting www.snapon.com or by calling toll free 877-SNAPON-2 (877-762-7662).
